

Appendix 2:

Classification of Protestant Denominations

The following section documents the composition of the three major Protestant traditions (evangelical Protestant churches, mainline Protestant churches and historically black Protestant churches) as they have been defined in this survey.

Protestants were grouped into religious traditions based on their specific denomination. For instance, all members of the Southern Baptist Convention have been classified as members of evangelical Protestant churches; those who belong to the American Baptist Churches in the USA are classified as members of mainline Protestant churches; and those who belong to the National Baptist Convention are classified as members of historically black Protestant churches. Protestant respondents who gave a vague response to denominational questions (e.g., “I am just a Baptist” or “I know I am Methodist but don’t know which specific Methodist denomination I belong to”) were placed into one of the three Protestant traditions based on their race and/or their response to a question on whether they would describe themselves as a “born-again or evangelical Christian.” This means that some groups may appear within more than one tradition. For example, Independent Baptists appear in both the evangelical Protestant tradition and the historically black Protestant tradition, and a respondent’s placement into one or the other depended on the race of the respondent. These cases are noted in the detailed summary at the end of this appendix, with a description in italics of the criteria used to classify them.

The table below estimates the size of the largest Protestant denominations and identifies the Protestant tradition to which each belongs. Note that many denominational families include denominations that are associated with more than one Protestant tradition. For example, Baptists are found within all three Protestant traditions, Pentecostals belong to either the evangelical or historically black Protestant tradition and Lutherans belong to either the evangelical or mainline tradition.

This appendix concludes with a detailed summary of the composition of each of the Protestant traditions.

Detailed Summary of Protestant Denominations by Tradition and Family

The denominations listed below represent answers given by survey respondents. Some denominations were offered as explicit response options during the interviews, while others were volunteered by respondents. Respondents who gave vague denominational affiliations were assigned to a religious tradition based on their race and/or their response to a question on whether they would describe themselves as a “born-again or evangelical Christian,” as noted in italics.
